Tech Tip of the Month

Check your tire pressure each and every time you go out!

Do you realize that a flat or blown out tire is the number one reason you will see a rig on the side of the road?

To check your RV tire pressure, ensure your tires are cool (before driving or at least three hours after driving), remove the valve cap from the tire stem, use a tire pressure gauge to press firmly onto the valve stem and read the pressure; repeat this process for each tire, comparing the readings to the manufacturer's recommended pressure listed on the vehicle placard or owner's manual.

Real easy!
